The optimal way to generate returns via a given investment strategy is to manage assets within a publicly traded holding company having both reinsurance/insurance subsidiaries.

- Structure

- Insurer subsidiary writes profitable policies that can be reinsured by reinsurer subsidiary
- Reinsurer writes additional reinsurance policies to achieve desired leverage on company capital
- Reinsurer's portfolio is managed to optimize return vs. risk with greater flexibility

- Benefits

- Increases investable assets via premium “float,” providing 1.5X-2X leverage on company capital
- Optimizes underwriting profits and investment results
- Company capital is not subject to withdrawals
- Publicly traded company provides liquidity for investors
